A NOTE FROM Paul

I am excited to have finally arrived at the iconic Bay Hill Club & Lodge and I truly look forward to meeting you. My level of excitement to be a part of The Arnold Palmer Group cannot be quantified, and I feel honored to be here. For me it's a new start that ironically connects all the way back to my childhood. I grew up in a turbulent time in Belfast, Northern Ireland where I was introduced to golf and the food industry at an early age.

As a member of Belvoir Park Golf Club, I went through their junior golf program and earned the nickname "Arnie", hence the connection. I remained a competitive member there until I graduated college. Then, working in the family's fruit import business from age 13, I experienced every facet of manual labor, but particularly followed in my father's pursuit of excellence in operating the business. At 17 years old, visiting hotels, a new facet of our supply business, I got to meet chefs and restaurateurs who ignited a fresh passion for me. That was my introduction to the business and my desire to pursue a formal education in the hospitality business. Sadly, the "troubles" back home closed my first hotel after graduating, so I expressed my desire to leave the homeland and to move to the USA, at a time when patriotism far outshaded what was at home for me. I immigrated to Boston in 1987, found a job on my first day and then found a place to live. I thought the USA might be a one year test, but that was almost 34 years ago. I have been privileged that my career has taken me to many places in the USA, and afforded me experiences that would be bucket list items for some, yet I remain humbled that I am still here to serve in a career that keeps me impassioned.

Thank you and the team at Bay Hill for the warm welcome.

INSIDE THE WHITE STAKES

NOTABLE PERFORMANCES

May 8: Joel Durrance eagled the 6th hole in helping his team to win the Member-Member Gross Championship (partnered with Erik Knudsen). The last time he played the 6th hole (May 1 in the Shootout) he had a double-eagle 2, that is a 2.5 stroke average on the par-5 6th hole the first 8 days of May!

May 8: Hervey Lavoie aced the 153-yard 14th with his 5-iron—his 3rd lifetime ace and 2nd at Bay Hill.

May 9: Glenn “Spanky” Stafford aced #14 with his 4-hybrid from 158 yards. It was Spanky’s 10th lifetime ace, 3rd at Bay Hill and 3rd on #14.

Congratulations to 2021 Mullet Masters winner, David Salazar. David made up a 5 shot deficit on the Charger shooting an amazing net 26 to win by ½ shot over Chris Bessette on May 1. David shot 72-26=98 beating Chris 69-29.5=98.5 and Glenn Stafford 67-32=99. The 27 hole event was played on the Challenger/Champion in the morning and finished the day with a 9 hole shootout on the Charger, which all came down to the last hole with all 3 players within 1 shot before David made a net eagle to get his first Mullet Masters Victory.

KEEPIN' IT GREEN

by Chris Flynn

As we enter the summer season we begin to focus on cultural practices such as aeration. There are several reasons why aeration is so important, especially on putting greens. Compaction may be the most cited reason but is actually ranked towards the bottom of the list in terms of importance.

Maintaining or even improving the rate water moves into the soil is an important part of aeration. It creates channels that allow water to move into the soil profile more rapidly. As the term aeration implies, it increases the amount of space available for oxygen (air) to penetrate the soil, which is critical for root and plant growth. Improvement in oxygen levels and water infiltration are achieved through the removal of organic matter.

The removal of organic matter (thatch) and topdressing to modify the existing soil may be the most critical reasons to aerate greens. The grass is constantly producing organic matter through normal growth processes. Thatch is like a sponge, holding many times its weight in water. As organic matter increases, more water is held in the upper portion of the soil profile. While a limited amount of thatch is necessary, when organic matter levels increase – problems such as diseases and mower scalping increase dramatically. Research suggests that 20% of the surface area of a putting green needs to be impacted via some method of soil/thatch removal. This can be done through core aeration or aggressive, deep verticutting. Regardless, filling the holes or grooves with sand is essential. The sand on the surface may be annoying at times, but it is an important part of maximizing the benefit of core aeration.

Golfers do not despise aeration; they rue the resulting 10 to 14+ days of reduced playability. If putting quality was disrupted only for a day or two, the process would not be so reviled. Thus, superintendents have a responsibility to ensure that all available programs are being implemented to restore playability as quickly as possible. Filling aeration holes completely with sand is an important start to this process. The greens will be smoother and their appearance will be better than partially filled or open holes.

Skipping an aeration is not necessarily an agronomic catastrophe, but it only means inevitable maintenance is deferred. The need for aeration increases with each skipped maintenance practice. The problem is, aeration programs go hand in hand with the season-long golfer expectations. Diluting organic matter with sand through core aeration, deep verticutting, and light topdressing programs directly impacts a golf course superintendent's ability to provide expected conditions. Greens with greater quantities of sand to dilute thatch in the upper portion of the soil profile are generally firmer, drain more quickly after rainfall, and provide better playability. Firm greens are less susceptible to scalping and other mechanical damage. The bottom line is, aeration is performed for the health of the grass and, ultimately, the playability of the putting greens. Greens with less organic matter, properly managed through aeration and other techniques, will be better greens on a season-long basis. Try not to get caught up in the short-term disruption to playability, and focus on the long-term benefits that core aeration programs provide.

As always, please do not hesitate to contact me or flag me down out on the course with any concerns or suggestions. Til then – Hit 'Em Straight!
